

ABSTRACT

A tag equipped with markers and, notably, optical markers that also include an electronic label that is adhered and that transmits the relative positions of the tags, or other characteristics of the tags, to a measuring system using telecommunication. Confusion between various tags can thus be avoided, and a greater interaction between the measuring system and the tag can be obtained.